

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A secure clamping mechanism formed with two spaced apart surfaces; a resiliently compressible biasing member positioned between the two spaced apart surfaces; a clamp having a drive shaft that is structured to be slidingly engaged between the two spaced apart surfaces; and an interference means for engaging the biasing member between the drive portion and at least one of the spaced apart surfaces.